—The senate, instead of acting on the tariff measures in a way to relieve the country from its financial stringency by renewing confidence in its legislators, is wasting its time trying to legislate God into the constitution.

—While Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Joynt sat reading at their home on Seventh street last evening a large party of their friends came suddenly in upon them and soon had possession of the house from cellar to garret. A jolly evening was enjoyed.

—Before leaving our city this morning George Dee remarked to a TELEGRAPH reporter that smoke would again be curling from the chimney at the old lye works between the depots within sixty days. A planing mill is to be started there.

—Real estate agent F. E. Stiteley remarked this morning that it came to his knowledge that a discerning lady traveling the length of the state on the Illinois Central stated that Dixon appeared to her to be the most desirable city on the route to live in.

—Rev. W. H. Hartman yesterday afternoon at the parsonage performed the ceremony which united in wedlock Harry G. Plantz and Miss Effie M. Swartz of Franklin Grove. The young people will make their home two miles east of Nachusa.

Attempted Burglary.

Yesterday evening three suspicious looking characters were noticed longing around the depot. At about midnight an attempt was made to enter by inserting some instrument into the front door lock, the home of Mrs. Lebree on Highland avenue. The intruders were frightened away by a pistol shot from a window. An hour later they returned and cut the putty from a light of glass in one of the windows, when they were again driven off by an alarm from Mrs Lebree. About three o'clock they passed the house a third time, but did not stop. This morning their tracks were found all around the premises.

Literary Conundrum Party.

Mrs. Richard Courtright gave a peculiar literary party yesterday afternoon. The affair gave much amusement to the guests as well as to the hostess. The pith and point of the affair may be considered to have been concentrated in the manner of illustrating literary conundrums. For instance, each lady's dress, or some portion of the dress, or some peculiarly arranged ornament, could be, by those sharp enough to see the point, interpreted to mean the name of some well known book.

"Hell Up to Date" was represented by picture from Pilgrims' Progress with the figures 1894. "Allan Quartermain" by a photograph of Mr. Allen —— and a quarter section of the map of Maine. One lady wore her husband's portrait conspicuously proclaiming "My Wayward Partner;" while Owen Meredith's "Licile" was represented by a signet dangling from the costume of a lady, a loose seal in fact.

One lady appeared wearing two cards on which were printed the simple words, "Dixon, Sterling," and strange as it may appear, the ladies at once guessed the name of the book it referred to: "The Quick and the Dead."

Wedding Bells.

On Thursday, March 8th, at the pleasant and commodious farm residence of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Brierton, three and one half miles northeast of Dixon on the Davsville road, over one hundred relatives and friends assembled to witness the marriage of their daughter, Miss Minerva, to Alonzo E. Phillips, both of Nachusa. The ceremony was performed at 11 o'clock a. m. by Rev. Divan of Dixon.

The bride was attired in a rich gown fashioned of cream colored Albatross and lace, white gloves and floral ornaments. The groom wore a neat suit of conventional black with white tie and gloves.

The bride has long and favorably been known to a large circle of friends where she has lived and enjoyed a good home with kind indulgent parents and the society of many true friends. The groom is an enterprising young man of steady habits, enjoying the respect and good will of a host of friends. After the ceremony and usual congratulations the happy couple and guests were ushered into the dining room and seated at the heavily laden and richly decorated tables and such a bountiful and delicious repast was never more heartily partaken of or more thoroughly enjoyed. The remainder of the day was spent in social intercourse and will long remain fresh in the memory of all present. The many valuable and useful presents given as tokens of esteem will serve to beautify their new home and also to remind them of this delightful day when their vows were plighted and they had every indication of a future life of prosperity and happiness. Their friends will rejoice to learn that they are to remain in their midst; as they will soon take possession of a large and finely improved farm formerly owned by L. Willard, but recently purchased by the bride's father.

Among those from a distance were Messrs. Jacob and John Lievan, Levi Heckman, Horn, William Parker, Wilson Heckman, Simon Rhodes, Abram Morrison, Gerhart, Herman and John Missman and families, of South Dixon; Rev. and Mrs. Divan, Messrs. and Mesdames Wm. Brierton, Marshal McNeal, A. L. Heckman, S. Y., Joseph and Miss Hannah Cleaver, Mrs. Sindell and daughter, Mr Stearn, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Leach, Mrs. Anna Harrison, Mr and Mrs. Wm. Webster; besides all in the immediate vicinity.

—"Cead mile failte," which, being interpreted from the Celtic into the English language, means, a hundred thousand welcomes, and is the greeting with which the Catholic Order of Foresters of Columbia Court announce that they will duly celebrate the natal day of Erin's patron saint, good St. Patrick, on the evening of March 17th at the opera house. The entertainment will consist of music and dancing, in which the songs and dances of the Emerald Isle will form a part. The admission fee is merely nominal, and no gauge by which to compute the enjoyment to participants or spectators. The entertainment will begin at 7:30.

—Our dispatches this evening announce the acquittal of Coughlin on trial in Chicago the second time for the murder of Doctor Cronin. It was understood by the friends of Coughlin that though he was not only one of the chief conspirators but the probable murderer of the doctor, yet time had so deadened the memory of scattered witnesses beyond the reach of the court that a new trial would modify the punishment. But no one was prepared for a virdict of not guilty, especially after reading the new and convincing testimony of the guilt of the "big detective." The Chicago courts need reforming. We can say that so far as Dixon is concerned, the intelligent fellow-countrymen of the accused, who have read carefully and dispassionately the very full newspaper accounts of the long and tendious trial, regard much of it, and especially the verdict of the jury, as a travesty on justice. Coughlin has escaped the meshes of the law, through the verdict of twelve men not above the suspicion of having been tampered with; but in the larger court of public opinion he has been pronounced guilty of the crime of Cain. The ultimate effect of this second Cronin trial should be a complete reform in the administration of our criminal laws.

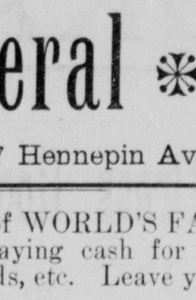
BIG DAN SET FREE.

Coughlin Acquit of the Murder of Dr. Cronin.

END OF A GREAT CRIMINAL CASE.

A Review of the Cause Celebre from the Fatal Night That Saw the Doctor "Removed" to the Close of the Late Trial—New Evidence Brought Out on the Second Trial on Both Sides—Extract from the Judge's Charge Containing the "Nub" Thereof.

CHICAGO, March 9.—The jury in the Coughlin case came into the court after six and a half hours consideration of the case and rendered a verdict of not guilty of the crime of murder as charged in the indictment. Dan was immediately surrounded by friends and congratulated warmly over the result of the trial, that makes a free man of him after a little over four years of imprisonment. He was much moved and could hardly speak for the joy that filled his heart. His wife and children were present, and the scene was one of the most pathetic that has ever been witnessed in a Chicago court.



DAN COUGHLIN.

When the verdict of "not guilty" was read it was received with cheers, which the judge was unable to suppress, and an hour later Dan Coughlin was free.

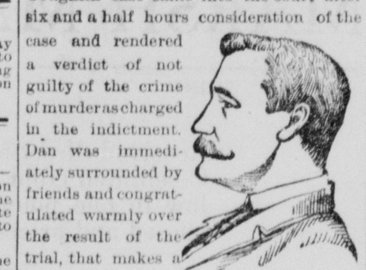
Impressive Scene at the Close.

A scene of vivid interest marked the final proceedings. In the crowded room every inch of space that could be made available being in possession of the spectators, many rich toilets were seen. The same faces seen all during the four months' trial were on hand bright and early. Their toilets were brighter than usual because it was to be a notable day, and it was with downright displeasure that the women quitted their seats in obedience to the orders of the court that the room be cleared after the jury retired.

Ten minutes after the jury retired the bailiffs consulted a moment, then one of them touched Coughlin on the shoulder. By means of that instinct which an old court habitue acquires the officers became impressed with the idea that the jury would be out some time before agreeing on a verdict. So Coughlin was invited to go back to the jail. Before leaving the court room he kissed his wife and children and went out smiling.

A Day to Long for Liberty.

An hour and a half earlier "big" Dan was driven swiftly over from his cell through the bright sunshine and the crowded streets. He seemed depressed. But after awhile the mild spring-like air sent his spirits up. It was a day to make any prisoner long for liberty. The golden sunshine streamed in through the Clark street windows, filling up the room with light to cheer. Treasurer Fitzgerald, of the defense fund, nodded to Dan when he came in, and sent him a smile that meant "cheer up," and Dan smiled back "I've got my nerve with me and I am all right."



THE PLACE OF MURDER, CARLSON COTTAGE.

A Time of Terrible Anxiety.

An added degree of pallor was on Coughlin's face all during the reading of the instructions. His anxiety must have been terrible. He looked like a man bearing up under a tremendous strain. To all in the court room, save the court and the jury, he was oblivious. On the crowd he turned his back, pulling up the velvet collar of his blue overcoat and defended himself as best he could against the cold draft from the street windows.

Faith of the Prisoner's Father.

Old Dennis Coughlin, father of the prisoner, was a sight to move one to pity. He has been his son's faithful friend. All through his deep trouble old Dennis Coughlin has been at the side of the man in front of whose mental vision a gallows tree has stood these last four months. Time and again old Dennis has said: "My boy never committed that crime; he couldn't do it."

SOME FIVE YEARS AGO HISTORY.

Brief Review of the Crime and the First Trial Therefor.

It is almost five years ago, when on the evening of May 4, 1889, Dr. Cronin left his office in the Windsor theatre building on the errand of mercy that proved a lure to his death. That the physician was actually butchered was not known until May 22, when his badly decomposed body was found in the catch basin on Evanston avenue and North Fifty-ninth street. That same day Captain Schuettler heard of the Carlson cottage. By his command Detectives Hyatt and Lorch were put in charge of the place and presently there were reports that "Big Dan" had been seen there a short time before the murder in company with John P. Kunze, Patrick Cooney, alias "Cooney the Fox," and Iceman O'Sullivan. The following day, May 24, 1889, Coughlin was arrested. May 29 Patrick O'Sullivan was taken into custody and June 15 Martin Bourk was behind the bars. A mass of evidence was collected. The amount of testimony to be heard was so great that the coroner's inquest, which commenced June 4, did not finish its labors till June 11.

DR. CRONIN.

From their known associations with Coughlin Beggs and Kunze were held for trial. Beggs was senior guardian of camp 20 of the Clan-na-Gael, and presided when the vote was taken to expel Dr. Cronin from the order on the alleged ground that he was a British spy. Little Kunze was held on the testimony of Saloonkeeper Nieman, who identified him as having been with Daniel Coughlin in his place at 11 o'clock the night of the murder. The state has been inclined to believe that Nieman was mistaken. His description of the man answers in every detail to Andrew Foy, but at the time Kunze was arrested and put on trial Foy's connection with the case, as sworn to by his wife, was not known to the police. The fact is that the state's case was weak in identification all through, for there is nothing about Dan Coughlin except his height that a description of would not fit hundreds of men.

The trial of Coughlin, Bourk, O'Sullivan, Beggs and Kunze was begun Aug. 30, 1889. It was finished Dec. 16, and the verdict sent Coughlin, Bourk and O'Sullivan to the penitentiary for life and put Kunze there for three years. Beggs had been discharged by the judge because there was not enough evidence to connect him with the conspiracy. The above verdict was not the verdict of eleven of the jury, but if it had not been for John Culver that jury would have hanged the whole lot. Culver stood out, however, first for acquittal on the ground that the state had not proved its case, and finally for the best thing he could get, which was the verdict above stated. The finding against Kunze was never enforced because Judge McConnell, who presided at the trial, entertained doubts that the man was guilty as charged. And it was with the greatest popular disapproval that the punishment of the convicted ones was received.

For voting as he did Culver was in danger of being mobbed for a time—at any rate mob law was threatened—he was most vigorously abused by the press, and a libel suit resulted which Culver lost. In January, 1890, the convicted men were sentenced. Attorney Daniel Donahoe on behalf of O'Sullivan made the first request for a new trial, but while the matter was pending O'Sullivan died, Then Coughlin's application was made and before it was disposed of Bourk died. The new trial was granted "Big Dan" Jan. 20, 1893, and he was put on trial the second time Jan. 4, last.

The prosecution had some difficulties in the second trial. Much of the testimony relating to Camp 20, Clan-na-Gael, was ruled out, but several new witnesses were introduced, the most important being Mrs. Foy and Bardeen. The former told a story that should hang her husband and a number of others, including Dan Coughlin, if true; Bardeen swore he identified Coughlin at a distance of fifty feet at night by the rays of a thirty-six candle power headlight walking beside a wagon containing a box, up in the neighborhood where Cronin's body was found, the night of the murder. He also swore that the moon was shining, while the almanac said it was not.

WHERE THE DOCTOR'S BODY WAS FOUND.

On the other hand the defense had several witnesses who flatly contradicted Mrs. Foy and one who swore that Dan Coughlin was at home from 11 o'clock of the night of the murder—this witness was a woman, Dan's cousin. Then two witnesses swore Dan was at the station the night of the murder until about 10 o'clock, and three others may be said to have completely destroyed the prosecution's great point about the knives found on Coughlin, as these witnesses swore they were both Dan's and had been in his possession long before Cronin was murdered. It will be remembered that the prosecution held one of them at least to have been Cronin's.

The judge's charge in this last trial was different only in verbal arrangement and not in substance from any other judge's charge in a similar case. The pith of it is in the following extract, so far as that very important point, "a reasonable doubt," is concerned; "The court instructs you that the duty of a jury, especially in a capital case, requires the most careful and conscientious caution in the examination of all the facts and circumstances in evidence. It is not sufficient that it is quite likely or more probable, if from the evidence you should so believe, that defendant is guilty. You cannot decide the issues of this case upon any doctrine of chances. The law will not justify the conviction of a citizen accused of a grave and serious crime upon any degree of proof, no matter how strong, which does not create certainty beyond every reasangble doubt, such certainty as a careful and prudent man would require to act upon in the most grave and important concerns of life."

BRITISH FIGHTING SLAVE TRADERS.

A Stockade Attacked and Burned by the Use of Rockets.

BATHURST, March 9.—The British forces are still meeting with a stubborn resistance in their attempt to route the forces of Chief Fodi-liab, the chief of the slavers. A flying column which started from Busumbula for Bakamar did not meet with any resistance during the march. But Bakamar was found to be well fortified with stockades, and there was heavy firing on all sides.

Finally the troops shelled the town and sent a number of rockets into it, setting fire to several houses and doing considerable other damage. The fight lasted an hour, after which the British destroyed the town and subsequently returned to Busumbula, intending to move the whole force. The only casualties on the British side were three men wounded.

The Iowa Liquor Question.

DES MOINES, Ia., March 9.—In the senate the Republican bill to regulate the liquor traffic was taken up, and Funk, chairman of the committee having charge of the measure, advocated its passage. He said that state prohibition was a failure. According to the terms of the last Republican platform the change promised was local option and that was what the present bill tried to give. The house talked of the Democratic license bill.

Sugar Men Not Satisfied.

NEW YORK, March 9.—Wall street holders of sugar shares are not pleased with the senate bill fixing the tariff on sugar. They claim that the proposed rate is equal to only 1-16 of a cent p.r pound on refined sugar, which scarcely equals the German bounty on beet sugar.

Kossuth Shows Improvement.

TURIN, March 9.—Louis Kossuth passed a quiet day and showed some sign of improvement. He was able to leave his bed.

RAW MATERIALS

Look Like an Issue Between House and Senate.

SHALL THEY BE FREE OR DUTIABLE?

Men Who Favor Protection Win Their Fight Before the Senate Sub-Finance Committee—Iron Ore, Bituminous Coal, and Sugar to Pay a Tax—The Income Tax Retained, But Some Changes Made in the Method of Collection—Whisky.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The tariff bill is before the full senate finance committee, the sub-committee having completed its work. As it stands now the bill is more of a bill for protection than it was when it came from the house. The "free raw material" principle has been knocked out so far as iron ore, coal and lead are concerned and sugar is taxed from one cent to 1.4 cents per pound according to quality. The income tax feature is left in the bill, but some changes are made in the administration of the clause. The senate bill makes the collectors of internal revenue the officers in charge of the collection of income taxes instead of the deputy collectors, as provided in the Wilson bill. The right of appeal against imposition of unjust taxes is retained, but the final decision rests with the commissioner of internal revenue, and not with the secretary of the treasury as provided in the house bill.

More Exceptions to the Tax.

The order in which banks, trusts and insurance companies are taxed is somewhat changed, all of these institutions being included under general heads instead of separately. The following new exception to the tax is inserted: "Provided that dividends or interest accruing to states, counties or municipalities, and dividends, interest or annuities accruing to corporations or associations organized and conducted solely for charitable, religious or educational purposes, or to any trustee or other fiduciary on stocks, shares, funds or securities held solely for charitable, religious or educational purposes, or salaries due to state, county or municipal officers shall not be subject to such tax or deduction."

Employes to Pay Their Own Taxes.

In taxing salaries of employes of corporations the house bill makes it the duty of the corporation to pay the tax of each employe and then deduct it from their salaries. The senate bill relieves corporations from becoming the taxpayers for employes and compels the latter to make direct payments to the collector. The time when returns on income taxes are made is changed from the first "day" of March to the first "Monday" of March. The entire section requiring private corporations to notify revenue collectors of all dividends, profits, etc., declared, is stricken out. This does not relieve the corporations from the tax but does away with the burden of notifying the collector every time dividends or profits are divided. The section making it perjury to falsify any proceeding under the income tax is stricken out.

Change in the Whisky Clause.

Whisky came in for some changes, and one of them was the bonded period. The section changing the bonding period is as follows: "That the tax herein imposed shall be paid by the distiller of the spirits on or before removal from the distillery or place of storage, except in case the removal therefrom is authorized by law; and (upon spirits lawfully deposited in any distillery warehouse or other bonded warehouse established under internal revenue laws) within eight years from the date of the original entry for deposit in any distillery warehouse, or from the date of original gauge, except in case of withdrawal therefrom without payment of tax as authorized by law."

The tax on whisky is made $1.10 per gallon.

The Raw Material Changes.

It was on sugar, iron, coal and other raw materials that the fight waged hottest, and the following is the result: Coal, bituminous and shale, 40 cents per ton; coal slack, or culm, 15 cents per ton; free in the Wilson bill. Coke is 16 per cent. ad valorem; free in the Wilson bill. Iron ore, including manganiferous iron ore, also the dross or residuum from burnt pyrites, 40 cents per ton; Wilson bill free. A number of other iron products have the duties increased to nearer a protective basis. Sugar not above 80 degrees polariscope test 1 cent per pound; for every additional degree or fraction not above 90 degrees, 0.01 cent additional; above 90 and not above 96, 0.01 cent per degree, and above 96 degrees, a duty of 1.4 cents per pound. Molasses testing below 56 degrees by the polariscope shall pay a duty of 2 cents per gallon; molasses testing above 56 degrees shall pay a duty of 4 cents per gallon. Lead is taken from the free list and made dutiable.

A FEW SCHEDULES COMPARED.

What the Senators Did with the Products of the Farm.

There are a number of changes in the agricultural schedule and some of them follow: Hay, 20 per cent. ad valorem; Wilson, $2 per ton. Honey, 20 per cent. ad valorem; Wilson, 10 cents per gallon. Hops, 20 per cent. ad valorem; Wilson, 8 cents per pound. Onions, 20 per cent. ad valorem: Wilson, 20 cents per bushel. Peas, dried, split peas and peas in cartons, papers or other small packages, 20 per cent.; Wilson, 20 and 5 cents per bushel and 1 cent per pound. Potatoes, 30 per cent.; Wilson, 16 cents per bushel. Castor beans, 20 per cent.; Wilson, 20 cents per bushel. Fish, smoked, dried, salted, pickled, 15 per cent.; Wilson, ¾ cent per pound. Apples, green or ripe, dried, dessicated, evaporated or prepared in any manner, 20 per cent.; Wilson, free.

On wool of the sheep, hair of the camel, goat, alpaca, and other like animals in the form of roving, roping, or tops, the Wilson bill is changed so as to make only one rate of 25 per cent ad valorem. A like change is made in the paragraph relating to woolen and worsted yarns made wholly or in part of wool, worsted, the hair of the camel, goat, alpaca, or other animals, and the whole put at 30 per cent. ad valorem. On woolen and worsted cloths, shawls, knit fabrics, not especially provided for in this act 35 per cent. ad valorem. Wilson bill 40 per cent. On other products there is a general reduction of 5 per cent.

The free list is not so much changed as had been supposed it would be, and the abstractions from it are far more numerous than additions. The date when the free list shall go into effect is changed from June 1, 1894, to June 30, 1894. Anthracite coal is left on the free list. Diamonds and other precious stones, rough or uncut, are added to the free list.

There is a touch of reciprocity in a proviso attached to the paragraph admitting plows, harrows, harvesters and other agricultural implements free, the proviso being to the effect that all the articles mentioned in this paragraph "when imported from any country which lays an import duty on like articles coming from the United States shall be subject to the duties existing prior to the passage of this act." The provision for the free admission of horses for temporary exhibition under the auspices of racing associations is eliminated.

The administrative features of the bill are substantially identical with those of the house bill. This insures extensive changes from the present law, as the house bill made an extensive revision of the entire administration system. The exception in the Wilson bill as to personal effects not subject to duty is enlarged to read: "And personal and household effects specifically enumerated in the new list of this act."

The proceedings of the senate committee on finance were in the main informal. Copies of the bill were handed to all the members, and the Republicans who had not had a previous opportunity to see it glanced through it cursorily. There was some discussion of time for consideration of the bill by the full committee, the Republican members saying they would desire a reasonable period and the Democratic members expressed themselves as willing to grant that without cavil.

The Democratic senators who wanted protection for iron, coal, etc., are satisfied in a modified degree. Republicans, as a rule, are reticent, and so are the Populists. There is a provision in the bill which gives notice of abrogation of the treaty with Hawaii—in the interests of the domestic sugar men—and Kyle says he knows that will be stricken out. Several Republican members of the house noted the fact that the senate had abandoned the principle of free raw material, which was a strong point with the house.

Congressional Doings Briefed.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The senate did little except discuss the seigniorage bill on Allison's motion to reconsider the third reading. Harris wanted to dispose of it in thirty minutes, while Sherman hoped such legislation would not be rushed through that way. No action was taken. An executive session was held.

Hawaiian correspondence was received by the house, which agreed to the conference report on the urgent deficiency bill, The bill was passed to reform the methods of customs accounting in the treasury, abolishing the offices of commissioner and assistant commissioner of customs. The District appropriation bill was considered without action.

May Have Trouble with John Bull.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The president has turned over to the secretary of state the preparation of an answer to the Morgan resolution calling for information relative to the landing of British troops at Bluefields, Nicaragua. The general view here seems to be that if the British have landed troops to protect the Mosquito chiefs against Nicaragua there will be a hitch between this country and England.

Increase of Internal Revenue Receipts.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The receipts from internal revenue were far above the average, reaching $980,465, against $243,940 for the same day last year.

Iowa Boy Appointed a Cadet.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—T. Murphy, of Council Bluffs, Ninth Iowa district, has been appointed a cadet at West Point.

THEY DEFY GOVERNOR WAITE.

Denver Police Commissioners Refuse to Accept the Bounce.

DENVER, March 9.—The city police is massed at the city hall under orders from Police Commissioners Orr and Martin, upon whom Governor Waite has served notices of removal, to prevent their successors, Dennis Mullins and S. D. Barnes, appointed by Waite from taking possession of the offices. It is believed that the governor intends to call out the militia if necessary to install the new commissioners in office.

Wells, Taylor and Tapler, counsel for Orr and Martin, have secured from Judge Graham a temporary writ of injunction restraining Governor Waite from calling out the militia, restraining Mayor Van Horn from arming a posse of men to assist in forcing Commissioners Orr and Martin out of their offices, and restraining the governor's new appointees from taking their seats.

The governor was wild with rage. He has arranged, it is said, to pounce down on the headquarters and forcibly take possession. "These men have got to go," he said. At the city hall the force is in readiness and well prepared to resist any attack. Chief Kellogg is in charge. Sheriff Burchinell has a large force of deputies who will assist in preventing the new commissioners from taking forcible possession.

TRIED TO KILL A PROTECTIVE.

An Irishman at Dallas Fires at an A. P. A. Lecturer.

DALLAS, March 9.—An A. P. A. organizer named J. W. Hale, from Kansas City, Kan., reached here and distributed a lot of anti-Roman Catholic literature. At night at the Auditorium Hale attempted to speak. After the audience had assembled and the hall was well filled with all sorts of citizens an Irishman named Tom Duffy, before Hale had gotten far, suddenly sprang to his feet and drawing a revolver fired four times in rapid succession.

The shots went wild and all missed Hale, but one struck a man in the audience named John Russell in the neck, slightly wounding him. A panic ensued in the audience, but in the stampede down the stairway no one was hurt. Hale loudly pounded the floor with his cane and succeeded in restoring order. He then proceeded with his speech. Duffy was arrested and put in jail.

Went Over a Dam and Died.

PITTSBURG, March 9.—A small boat in which were four men was swept over dam No. 1 on the Monongahela river above the city and two of the men were drowned. The wife of one of the men witnessed the accident from the shore, and in her frenzy jumped into the river to drown herself, but was rescued.

Been "Shoving the Queer."

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., March 9.—Peter Turner and J. W. Hamilton, both of Brooklyn, Massac county, have been bound over by United States Commissioner Robinson at Cairo, charged with passing counterfeit money. They failed to give bail and were lodged in jail here.

Died on a Train.

CHICAGO, March 9.—B. J. Kelly, a real estate dealer of South Milwaukee, died on an incoming Chicago, Burlington and Quincy train. He was on his way home from Denver and was accompanied by his daughter and Dr. Callahan of Denver.

TURBULENT LABOR.

A Mob of 2,000 Gets After a Single Man.

RESCUED BY POLICE AFTER A FIGHT

In Which the Hunted "Scab" Does Vigorous Work with an Iron Bar—The Victim Badly Bruised and Cut—Some Arrests to Follow—More Bloodshed in the Kanawha Valley—Bohemian Strikers Drive Away Their Italian Successors.

PATERSON, N. J., March 9.—Two thousand striking silk weavers, when the mills closed, lay in wait for Frank Newkirk, who had returned to work after going out on a strike. When Newkirk appeared he was hooted and jeered. He started to run and the mob followed. Newkirk was knocked down and assaulted with fists and stones.

Policemen went to Newkirk's rescue and fought their way to his side. When the trio were finally clear of the mob the rioters fell in behind and began stoning them. On the way to the police station assistance was received from other officers and the crowd was beaten back.

Fought His Assailants Vigorously.

On arriving at the police station it was found that Newkirk was badly bruised and cut. The policemen were all slightly hurt. Before leaving the mill Newkirk armed himself with an iron bar, and after he had been kicked, while lying on the sidewalk, he managed to regain his feet.

He then laid about him with the iron bar and several of the rioters were injured. They were hurried home by their friends. The police have names of a couple of score of strikers and toughs who took part in the riot, and they will be arrested.

KANAWHA VALLEY MINE TROUBLES.

One of the Indicted Rioters Shoots a Man Through the Heart.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 9.—Serious trouble was threatened at Fayetteville station. A telegram was received by Major Banks at Eagle that about 150 strikers had possession of a freight train there. An engine and caboose bearing Deputy Sheriff Walker soon arrived at Eagle and a posse was summoned. After some difficulty the posse cleared the train and it pulled out.

A. P. Ratcliffe, who had charge of the party that arrested Wyant Sunday, became engaged in a difficulty with a man at Sewell and shot his opponent through the heart. He has made his escape. Ratcliffe is a desperate character, and is now under indictment. The jail at Fayetteville is overflowing with prisoners. The Odd Fellows hall is crowded, and they are also in churches and schoolhouses. About thirty-five warrants yet remain to be served.

BOHEMIANS VS. ITALIANS.

They Have a Fight Over Who Should Do Some Work.

CLEVELAND, March 9.—Early in the week about forty Bohemian laborers employed by the contractors doing the preliminary work for a new bridge at Petrie street, in the outskirts of the city, went on a strike. A gang of Italian laborers of the same number appeared at the place to go to work. A crowd of over 100 Bohemians met the new workmen and viciously attacked them, using stones, clubs and fists. Heads were cut and bruised and one Italian was knocked senseless. The Italians fled and a policeman who arrived immediately after dispersed the Bohemians.

LOCOMOTIVE BOILER EXPLODES.

Low Water Sends Three Men Hurriedly Into Eternity.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., March 9.—The boiler of a locomotive on the Lehigh Valley railway exploded at Tannery, killing three men. Patrick Dugan, the engineer in charge, stopped his engine at Tannery and went to the telegraph office for orders. During his absence the locomotive was blown to pieces. The three men who were on the engine were killed. Their names are as follows: John Lennay, fireman; Edward Fox, brakeman, and John Dottor, brakeman. All were new hands, having taken the places of brotherhood men in the late strike. The cause of the explosion was low water in the boiler.

Bomb Explosion at Rome.

ROME, March 9.—Eight persons were wounded here by a dynamite bomb explosion, including one lady. Six of the wounded are in the hospital. Three of them are in a serious condition, and one of them is reported to be dying. A mason of the name Polidori, who was slightly wounded, was put through a course of questions by the police, and afterwards placed under arrest. The police believe him to be the man who threw the explosive, which took place close to the chamber of deputies.

Found Some Crooked Business.

ST. JOHNS, Mich., March 9.—Developments prove that the transactions of the Michigan Mortgage company, which recently assigned, covered some remarkable financial mismanagement. About $70,000 of the liabilities of the company consists of money paid by mortgagors who supposed that their mortgages had been discharged, when in fact they were not discharged. Neither was the money so received turned over to the mortgagees.

Liberal Methods in England.

LONDON, March 9.—A meeting of Conservative workman was held at Bermondsey, and the earl of Dudley was announced to speak on the employers' liability bill A hostile element, however, had invaded the hall, and made two attempts to storm the platform, being met each time and driven back by the organizers of the meeting. After waiting some time and despairing of getting a hearing the earl of Dudley left the building.

Contract for Raising the Kearsarge.

BOSTON, March 9.—The contract for raising the wrecked U. S. S. Kearsarge has been awarded to the Boston Tow Boat company, of this city. By the agreement the company is to receive $45,000 if successful in delivering the ship at the Norfolk navy yard, and if unsuccessful is to be paid $10,000 for having made the attempt.

NOVEL LAND SUIT BEGUN.

The Dirt Goes Into the Missouri and the Buyer Refuses to Pay.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 9.—A novel suit was brought in the federal court here. Some years ago Samuel L. Light bought ten acres of land on the west bank of the Missouri at Randolph, a small town east of here. The purchase price was $6,000, Light paying part cash and giving notes for $4,000. At Randolph the Missouri river is very treacherous and its waters have gradually encroached on the land until the whole ten acres have become submerged. The note came due, but Light refused to honor it. The suit is a result.

A SEASON OF SILKS.

Revivals of Many Old Fashioned Fabrics, Including Lutestring and Taffeta.

If one may believe as high authority in matters pertaining to dress and fashion as Harper's Bazar, we are to have a season of silks. Among revivals of many old fashioned fabrics French manufacturers are showing lutestring silks like those worn half a century ago, when Queen Victoria was young. These are soft to the touch, yet are stoutly woven and very lustrous, like taffeta. They come in quaint chine designs of flowers and dashes of vivid colors on pale grounds.

Moire taffeta is announced among the light silks. These are strong, yet light of weight, and have shot grounds, with large moire designs, and either chine figures or fine dots of the color least in evidence. Pale mauve moire taffeta is shot with pink, green with brown, violet with black and light blue with black. Dark blue taffeta watered in large waves and dotted with white will make the coolest looking of all dark dresses for summer, and brown taffeta shot with violet is also effective. White moire taffeta pointille with a color is for summer evening wear. Fine cross stripes of color, scarcely more than two threads each, are in pink and nile green on black taffeta, and small chine leaves are added in the color of the stripes.

Chine designs promise to be the feature of next season in goods of various kinds, both of silks and of wool, with hard twisted smooth surfaces. Chine and clouded taffeta will be used for shirt waists and for the plastrons of plain wool dresses. They are in charming shades of mauve, gray blue and ecru, and are usually of two or three colors shot together. A frill below the belt will be a feature in many shirt waists, giving the popular effect of a short basque.

Liberty satins are imported for short waists in dark shades of blue, strewn with square dots of white set in irregular clusters. Ecru satins have very tiny black dots clustered together. Black satins for entire dresses are shown in a new weave of slight reps, known as arabian satin.

For the silk gown that is now worn on a greater number of occasions than formerly for both street and house are dark taffetas, pin dotted or striped, or else soft twilled silks with heavier diagonals than those of surah. These can be had in great variety for $1 a yard. Richer bengalines, with waving cords, and many repped silks, blending two or three colors most harmoniously, are $1.50 a yard. At some of the best shops dress lengths of black or of colored silks are sold for $23. The economist who knows how to combine colors and fabrics can do still better than this by using two remnants in the same gown—one of five or six yards for the waist and sleeves, the other of 10 yards for the skirt and its trimming.

Raised Doughnuts.

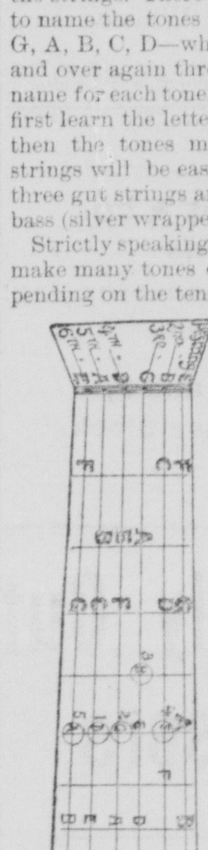
Two cups of sweet milk, a cup of sugar, half cup of butter creamed with the sugar, a cup of homemade yeast, 2 eggs well beaten. Add flour and mold into a stiff dough. Let it rise until very light; then roll it out to a sheet about half an inch thick, cut out your cakes and let them stand on floured plates in a warm place and rise again until very light. Fry in hot fat, shake off the grease and roll in pulverized sugar while hot.

A simple way to attain a similar end is to take, in the morning of your baking day, about a pint of your light bread dough (of course this presupposes that your bread was set over night) and work into it a beaten egg, half a cup of sugar, a piece of butter the size of a walnut and a little nutmeg or cinnamon. Roll out thin, cut and let them rise; then fry and treat as above.

First Lesson In Guitar Playing.

First of all learn the letter names of the strings. There are seven letters used to name the tones of the guitar—E, F, G, A, B, C, D—which are repeated over and over again three times to provide a name for each tone. The beginner should first learn the letter names of the strings; then the tones made by pressing the strings will be easily located. The first three gut strings are E, B, G. The three bass (silver wrapped) strings are D, A, E.

Strictly speaking, the open strings may make many tones of different pitch, depending on the tension of the string, but in music the tone made by the open string always takes the name of the string. Notice that letters naming the open strings are always four letters apart, except G, B, which are three. Hence we say the guitar is tuned in fourths, except B, which is tuned to a third. You will observe the object of the long fingerboard is to produce a number of tones on a few strings. The frets unerringly direct where to stop the strings to produce the several tones of the scale.



LETTERS ON GUITAR.

Students who have had music lessons know that the letters occur on every instrument just as they are found in the natural scale—that is, all the letters are found one whole tone apart, except E, F, and B, C, which are one-half tone apart.

Each fret on the fingerboard is one-half tone apart. This explanation from a musician in Farm, Field and Fireside will prepare you to understand the letters on the guitar. Learn to draw a copy of this from memory and write the bold faced letters on the strings above the frets where they are located, and you will be agreeably surprised at how readily you can locate each letter on the fingerboard if this suggestion is practiced.

AXMEN'S TRIGONOMETRY.

How an Uneducated Woodsman Can Determine the Height of a Tree.

Young students of trigonometry who regard the solving of the right angle triangle as a mystic art would be surprised to see the ease with which a rough, uneducated axman in the north woods solves the perpendicular, with only the horizontal line known. He does it in a way characteristic of his practical life, and while the results are not accurate to a hairbreadth they serve all ordinary purposes and save time.

The axman does not know anything about extracting square roots or about the relation of one side of a triangle to another, but he is practical, and when he wants to measure the length of a tree from the ground up he does it in the shortest and easiest way, without climbing the tree.

For instance, suppose he is told to select and chop down a tree which shall give 60 feet clear of the first cluster of branches, as is often the case when masts of ships or yachts are especially ordered. It would perhaps take all day for him to measure the trees by climbing up with a tape line. Instead of that, he selects a tree which his experienced eye tells him is likely to clear 60 feet under the branches.

Then measuring from its base 60 feet, less his own height, he sticks a pole in the ground flush with his head at the point measured to. After this he lies down flat on his back, with his feet against the upright pole, so that his head is just 60 feet from the tree, and sights over the top of the pole.

Wherever the imaginary line from his eye and the top of the pole strikes the tree, the axman knows is about 60 feet from the ground.

As an illustration, assume that the axman is 6 feet tall. He measures off 54 feet from the tree, and after erecting the pole 6 feet high, lies on his back behind the pole and lets his eye glance over the top of the pole to the tree.

This expedient of the axman not only demonstrates the ingenuity of the Yankee, but is a good example of the value of practical knowledge in general.—Youth's Companion.

Medicinal Vegetables.

Vegetables have direct effect upon the human system and often combine rare curative powers. Spinach affords relief in kidney troubles, and the common dandelion, used as greens, is excellent for the same thing. Asparagus purges the blood. Celery acts admirably upon the nervous system and is a cure for rheumatism and neuralgia. Tomatoes act upon the liver.

Beets and turnips are excellent appetizers. Lettuce and cucumbers are cooling in their effects upon the system. Onions, garlic, leeks, olives and shallots, all of which are similar, possess medicinal virtues of a marked character, stimulating the circulatory system, and the consequent increase in the saliva and gastric juice promote digestion.

Red onions are an excellent diuretic, and the white ones are recommended to be eaten raw as a remedy for insomnia. A soup made from onions is regarded by the French as an excellent restorative in weakness of the digestive organs.—Philadelphia Press.

Buckskins Do Shrink.

A gentleman from Nevada tells us the following, which he says happened when he was a cattle drover in that state:

"I used to wear buckskin breeches when riding across the sagebrush plains. I got into a hard storm one day, and with my legs thrown over a saddle and the rain soaking my garments the buckskin began to stretch. The legs sagged under my heels in a way that annoyed me, and so finally I took my knife and cut off a piece. The rain continued and next morning I had to cut off some more.

"Well, sir, it rained for a week, and in that time I cut enough buckskin off the legs of those pants to make two pairs of pants for my little boy. At the end of that time it cleared up, and the sun came out bright and warm, and in three hours those pants had shrunk till I had nothing left but a buckskin belt around my waist." —Nevada City Herald.

The Judge Took a Nap.

Most of the Philadelphia judges have their own peculiarities. They tell a story of one well known judge of the common pleas who likes an occasional afternoon nap that, after an important case had been argued for several hours by leading counsel with great eloquence, the attorney for the state coughed and prodded his honor gently and said, "They are awaiting your verdict." "Ah," said the judge, opening his eyes, "what case is it?" and upon being told he disposed of the matter summarily and gave sentence. So far as known a new trial has never been granted upon the plea of judicial somnolence.—Philadelphia Times.

Success.

Believe me, the talent of success is nothing more than doing what you can do well, and doing whatever you do without a thought of fame. If it come at all, it will come because it is deserved, not because it is sought after. And, moreover, there will be no misgivings, no disappointment, no hasty, feverish, exhausting excitement.—Longfellow.

An Editor's Recommendation.

Mr. C. F. Davis, editor of the Bloomfield, Iowa, Farmer, say: "I can recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to all sufferers with colds and croup. A New Cure for Rheumatism.

Joseph V. Dory, of Warsaw, Ills., was troubled with rheumatism and tried a number of different remedies, but says none of them seemed to do him any good but finally he got hold of one that speedily cured him. He was much pleased with it, and felt sure that others similarly afflicted would like to know what the remedy was that cured him. He states for the benefit of the public that it is called Chamberlain's Pain Balm. For sale by E. M. Bunnell Drug Co.

A Kansas Man's Experience.

Mr. Albert Favorite, of Arkansas City, Kan., wishes to give our readers the benefit of his experience with colds. He says: "I contracted a cold early last spring that settled on my lungs, and had hardly recovered from it when I caught another that hung on all summer and left me with a hacking cough which I thought I never would get rid of. I had used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy some fourteen years ago with much success, and concluded to try it again. When I had got through with one bottle my cough had left me, and I have not suffered with a cough or cold since. I have recommended it to others, and all speak well of it." 50 cent bottles for sale by E. M. Bunnell Drug Company.

A Timely Bit of Advice.

In these times of grip and pneumonia it is of great importance that we should know where to look for a safe and sure remedy. A slight cold may become a serious one, the scarcely noticeable pain in the chest is too often the forerunner of pneumonia. The first cough many lead to consumption (a cough is always dangerous.) Never neglect a cold or cough for even one day, but get at once, as a safe and sure remedy, Kemp's Balsam, the best cough cure, which is recommended on all sides. It should be kept in the house regularly to avoid delay when needed. It is sold at all the drug stores. d&w

SAILED THE SEAS 38 YEARS.
One of His Experiences.
For thirty-eight years Capt. Loud followed the sea, most of that time as master of a vessel, and upon retiring from the water was appointed by the Secretary of the United States Treasury to superintend the seal fisheries in Alaska, which position he held five years. He relates one experience as follows:
"For several years I had been troubled with general nervousness and pain in the region of my heart. My greatest affliction was sleeplessness; it was almost impossible at any time to obtain rest and sleep. Having seen Dr. Miles' remedies advertised I began using Nervine. After taking a small quantity the benefit received was so great that I was positively alarmed, thinking the remedy contained opiates which would finally be injurious to me; but on being assured by the druggist that it was perfectly harmless, I continued it together with the Heart Cure. Today I can conscientiously say that Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and New Heart Cure did more for me than anything I had ever taken. I had been treated by eminent physicians in New York and San Francisco without benefit. I owe my present good health to the judicious use of these most valuable remedies, and heartily recommend them to all afflicted as I was."—Capt. A. P. Loud, Hampden, Me.
Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and New Cure are sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or by Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5, express prepaid. They are free from all opiates and dangerous drugs.

—Speaking of the first railroad in this country, now comes George Deland with his United States history which gives the "S. C. Railroad" when completed to Savannah in 1833, as "the longest line in the world." He confirms neighbor Hatch's early railroad ride from Lowell to Boston when a boy.

—Frank H. Ray, who is always on the wing in Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Iowa, tells the Inter-Ocean correspondent that he never saw anything like the number of mills that are closed and closing. The small towns, he says, impress him even more than the big cities with the hardness of the times.

—According to the Tornado the girls of Tampico are in favor of proposals for marriage to be drawn up in legal form and sworn to and signed by the prospective groom and given into the keeping of his bethrothed. By this method there would be no public reading of love letters in court in case of a breach of promise suit.

—W. M. Penrose, of Sterling, has two pieces of paper money which were issued in 1773 by the province, now the state of Pennsylvania. They are certificates of the denomination of fifty shillings and are printed on paper similar to the strawboard of today. On each of thes certificates are the words, "To counterfeit is death."

—The social reception given last evening by the members of the Y. M. C. A. at their rooms, north of the post office, was the most numerously attended of any similar gathering and was certainly one of the jolliest parties of the season. Unless the society speedily enlarges its borders there will be no room for its receptions to grow in size, as they certainly do grow in popularity. The large double room and the front office were crowded. The young men were assisted in the reception by the members of the Epworth League, who furnished and served delicious refreshments of ice cream, cake and fruit. These were served in the third story. To the coat or dress of each guest on entering the reception room was pinned a pictured daisy those of the gentlemen and ladies being maked with duplicate numbers. It was a "daisy party," and some of the gentlemen daisies found some difficulty in discovering their "buttercups" when refreshments were announced. When the first platoon ascended to the refreshment hall, space was secured for the successful prosecution of a variety of social games, and at a reasonably late hour the one hundred and fifty happy participants paired off and repaired to their respective homes.

—The Mutal Gold Cure Club held a special meeting for the transaction of business at its club room last evening; and while many of the members were necessarily detained the meeting was an interesting one, if for no other reason than that several new members joined the society. The organization has been auspiciously begun and soon will be running with the smoothness and regularity of clockwork. A certain amount of machinery is necessary to run a clock or a club, but the simpler the better and the less the friction. Active members must be graduates of some gold cure institution; but their constitution provides for honorary membership from among those who sympathize with these men in their determination to seek congenial associates disconnected from the influences which were the bane of their former lives. They are earnest too, in their determination to assist others who are suffering from the drink habit to secure the restoration which they now enjoy, and in this they should meet the practical encouragement of all circles of society. Honorary membership costs $2 and applications from reputable persons are likely to receive favorable consideration. Let all temperance people recognize every practical temperance work.

—We can mention but a few of the most excellent papers in that king of juvenile monthly magazines, St. Nicholas, which grows grander each year and almost each month. In the March issue "Mothering Sunday" claims the frontispiece and the first article, and is a short statement designed to explain a name that has outlived its origin. "Owney, of the Mail-bags" describes a little cur who has sworn allegiance to the "U. S. M," "Joseph Boruwlaski," was that rarest of wonders, a dwarf worthy of admiration—a thorough little gentleman. "The Lament of the Outgrown Doll," "Kept After School," "Spring Cleaning," "The Disappointed Sailor," "An Accommodating Lion," "Taking Dolly's Photograph," "How the Little Kite Learned to Fly," are some of the short, bright, taking little pictures, verses and "contraptions." Length and dignity, or some compensating quality, must be sought in Mark Twain's "Tom Sawyer Abroad," Mr. Hornaday's "The Cat Family in Our Country," "Toinette's Philip," Mrs. Jamison's serial, and "Young George," an English historical story by Richard Marsh, an English contributor. Children who love the Brownies will be delighted to learn that the little fellows are to be seen in a play, a portion of which is printed in this number of the magazine.

—The March number of The Century contains a great variety of points. The opening article is a sketch of the Tuileries under Napoleon III., written by a lady who was a governess in one of the court families. The accompanying portraits are especially interesting. The announcement of the book on Lourdes by Zola gives timeliness to "A Pilgrimage to Lourdes" by Stephen Bonsal—a graphic record of individual experience at this famous shrine. Mrs. Van Rensselaer describes one of New York's most beautiful buildings, the Madison Square Garden; "Josiah Flynt" writes of "The City Tramp," and incidentally shows the crying need of organized charity; Prof. Edward S. Holden tells a good deal that is new about earthquakes, and how to measure them; the Rev. Dr. Washington Gladden writes of "The Anti-Catholic League" in a way that will attract wide attention; William Mason, the well known musician, discusses the work of the Norwegian composer, Edward Grieg. Major Andre also is a "contributor" to this number; his account of the "Mischianza," the famous festival given in honor of Sir William Howe in 1778, is printed from Major Andre's manuscript, heretofore unpublished. Not more than half of the contents of this rich number are here enumerated. Published by The Century Co., New York.

A Farmers' Gathering

At the large and beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Smith in Palmyra, an interesting company of members of the Rock River Farmers' Club was last evening pleasantly entertained. The near approach to the house was made bright by the cheerful lights which shone from every window, giving the surroundings a very picturesque appearance. Within the scene was made still more attractive. The beautiful flowers, so dear to the heart of Mrs. Smith, which with their bright foliage and fragrant blossoms seemed to enter into the spirit of the host and hostess in extending a cordial welcome. The exquisite paintings by Mrs George Smith, a lady so well known for her genius as an artist were much admired by all present.

A short musical program was rendered, the first being a banjo and guitar duet by Misses Myrtle Mitchell and Dessie Hughes, which was enthusiastically encored. Piano solos by Misses Grace Lord, Georgia Kentner and May Brookner were gracefully executed. Particular mention being made of the vocal solos by Mrs. Hattie McKinstry of Nelson and Mrs Fannie Judd, of Dixon, showing rare culture in voice and true artists in their line. They very pleasantly responded to repeated encores. The names of the following gentlemen were proposed, and elected members of the Club; Messrs. J. F. Palmer, Mayor of Dixon, Henry Satorias, Martin Detrick, Harry Moats, Roy Swigart, Warren Holly and Fred Lord, which swells the number to 140 members of the Farmers' Club, under the worthy President. Asa G. Judd, the membership and interest in the Club is steadily increasing.

At the conclusion of the musical program, it was announced that supper was ready and that plates were laid for 28 in the large and spacious dining room where a sumptious banquet was spread and beautifully ornamented with flowers. Thrice were the tables filled before each ones hunger was appleased. At a late hour the company dispersed, not without tendering a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Smith, assisted by their son, George and wife, for their hospitality and generous entertainment.

Speculating Senators.

A sweet scandal comes from Washington about United States Senators using the official knowledge acquired in the committee room, where the tariff bill is under consideration, to speculate in the New York board of trade on Sugar stocks. The scandal mongers go so far as to charge that the tariff legislation has been delayed that "grave and reverend seniors" might make a few thousand dollars in the rise of sugar trust stock. Henry O. Havemyer, the very head and front of the sugar trust, is in Washington and interviews have taken place between this great boss of the worst of all trusts and the committee having the Wilson tariff bill in charge. The Chicago Herald, a free trade paper, mildly takes the representatives of its party to task in the following significant confession:

Another suspicion, which is growing in view of the many changes in the sugar schedule and the consequently fluctuating market, is that considerable Washington capital is interested in sugar speculation. There have been stories of Congressional speculation in sugar stocks and whisky stocks ever since the Wilson bill was first reported to the House. There are several estimable gentlemen in the capital city who made money speculating in whisky stocks when the House committee was still juggling with the internal revenue features of the bill, and some of the same gentlemen have carried on a profitable flirtation with sugar provisions of the bill since the measure reached the Senate.

The McKinley bill left sugar practically on the free list and the Wilson bill passed the House in about the same condition, but the sugar planters of the South and the sugar trust got at the senate committee and no end of trouble has resulted, culminating in one of the worst scandals that ever disgraced the senate of the United States. Of all the ills caused by trusts none have displayed the cloven foot more to the injury of the people generally than has the sugar trust, for the reason that sugar is a commodity that is so universally used by the laboring people as well as all other classes. A poor family consumes about as much sugar as a rich family composing the same number of people.

Republican senators not being permitted to participate in the work of revising the tariff they fortunately escaped from this scandal.

A noticable peculiarity of this scandal is the mild mannered treatment it receives from such papers as the Chicago Herald. Heretofore journals of that class have, figuratively speaking, just stood upon their hind legs and howled and in days gone by their reporters would, in their anxiety for gossip, have rushed around the national capital not unlike the manner of an excited empirical one-eyed dog in a meat market.

Drawing General Conclusions from Isolated Facts.

Much has been said and written about the destitution and general depression existing in the Northwestern States among farmers. My attention is particularly called to this subject by reading the remarkably well-written essay of Mrs. Judd published in THE TELEGRAPH. I take exception to the statements contained in the first portion of the essay referring to "The Buffets of Farmers," as calculated to convey an erroneous idea of their condition takens a whole. I refer particularly to the glowing picture presented of farming in the Northwestern States.

Within the last few years I have taken some pains to get trustworthy information relative to the advantages and disadvantages of farming in South Dakota by visiting that region several times, by reading papers published in that State, and by talking with persons who were among the earliest settlers. What I have thus learned does not confirm the statement that farmers in that region are generally in a suffering or even unprosperous condition. That many who undertook farming there six or seven years ago, during the rush, without capital and without experience have failed and suffered, cannot be denied. The exceptional occurance of three successive years of drouth was the principal cause of their misfortunes. But with that drawback most of those who had previously become established there—like our former associate, Edward Sterling—have gone on prospering.

As evidence that there is not such an agricultural collapse in South Dakota as is represented by some pessimists, we have the fact that many thousand acres of wild school land was sold in that state last year at an average price of over $14 per acre. During the last two years the display of productions of South Dakota, as exhibited at the expositions held in Mitchell, have surpassed the state fair exhibits of Illinois, and have been so largely attended as to produce a considerable surplus on the credit side of the financial account. An old resident of that state recently told me that he knew of no land in the county where he resides that can be bought for less than $10 an acre. My informant is one who commenced there with almost nothing about fifteen years ago and who is now in independent circumstances.

The point I wish to emphasize is this: The fault of drawing general conclusions from isolated facts. Accounts of individual cases of suffering, or of several hundred cases, occurring over a territory several times as extensive as the state of Illinois, in a newly settled region, in years of drouth and low prices of farm products, are spread broadcast over the country in such a way as to convey the impression that the whole region where they occur is suffering from destitution, and is one where farmers cannot make a living. Little is said about facts on the other side, and little allowance made for temporary disastrous conditions. One year of good crops and good prices for grain would make a boom in western lands. Those lands have been too much maligned.
